Publisher Wins Along Battle

Arkansas newspaper publisher Gene Wirges proved that you can fight a political machine and he also proved that the fight can be worthwhile.

Wirges was caught in court with a perjury trial for a column published in his paper. The article was critical of County Judge Tom Scott of Conway County. For six years, Wirges battled the courthouse crowd. He lost his newspaper but he continued to fight. Last week, the Arkansas Supreme Court upped the conviction and, in the meantime, friends of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, salvaged the paper for him.

The court held that there was too wide a variance between the language in the indictment and the proof offered in the trial. San Antonio (Tex.) Express

All That Litters

Vacation season is litter season. The more people there are rushing about the countryside on pleasure bent, the more bottles, cans, papers and whatnot deface our roadsides and parks and recreation areas. Americans on the go foul their collective nest to an extent seldom equaled in all man's littering history.

Those not impressed by appeals to their sense of beauty and order are reminded that littering costs our society an enormous sum each year. The task of picking up after people who don't pick up after themselves uses up many millions of tax money.

That is important enough to warrant a crackdown on the litterbugs, who are better called messers or despoilers. But even more important are the above-mentioned considerations of beauty and order. No citizen worthy of the name can ignore the challenge to keep our open land free and clean, free of the unsightly stuff an affluent society discards. Macon (Ga.) News

A Crewcut For Milady?

A hair stylist told the recent Beauty and Harvest Festival at Charlotte, N.C., that the upcoming fashion for milady will be to wear the hair short during the day, when skirts are short, and longer at night (through use of hair pieces), when skirts are longer.

In other words, the length of the feminine hair will be fashion-co-ordinated with the length of the feminine skirt. This may be stylish all right, but it sure is going to seem funny to see women walking around practically bald in the daytime. Aniston (Ala.) Star

Congress May Cut Off Arms Aid Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sentiment to close the spigot of U.S. arms supplies to foreign countries appears to be growing in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Before the administration's $3.1-billion foreign aid bill, including nearly $800 million for military aid, reached the committee today, at least five of the 19 members of the panel voiced concern with the arms program. There were indications the committee might attempt to usurp authority usually left to the President to set arms policy and insist on cutbacks in the present system on grounds it has failed to help preserve peace.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, a committee member, said Monday the clash of Israeli and Arab armies earlier this month illustrated the "folly of the thesis that the United States can defuse arms races by supplying weapons."

Church told the Senate the Israelis and Jordanians used U.S.-supplied weapons in the battle over Jerusalem.

Sens. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa.; Albert Gore, D-Tenn.; Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.; and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., all committee members, and Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio; Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska; and George S. McGovern, D-S.D., expressed support for Church's views.

Delegates To Reject All Resolutions

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Several delegates predict the U.N. General Assembly, split on whether Israel should leave Arab soil before efforts toward a permanent settlement begin, will reject all resolutions now before it.

Some diplomats already were working on ideas for a compromise that might win the two-thirds vote needed for adoption. Voting starts Monday.

The voting seems likely to end the assembly's emergency session on the Middle East requested by the Soviet Union. It began June 17.

Whatever the assembly does, the matter will go back to the Security Council, which met intermittently between May 24 and June 14 and finally obtained a cease-fire but could not agree on what to do next.

If the assembly agrees on a plan, it would be up to the Security Council to implement it. The conflict with the assembly is primarily between two resolutions, both calling for withdrawal of Israeli forces from territories they captured from Egypt, Syria and Jordan in the June 5-10 war.

A proposal by 17 nonaligned nations calls for withdrawal first—and then consideration by the Security Council of other Middle East problems. A rival resolution sponsored by 18 Latin-American and Caribbean countries requests Israel to withdraw and both sides to declare peace and try to establish conditions for coexistence and good neighborliness.

The Arabs backed in general by the Soviet Union, insist that the withdrawal should be immediate and unconditional. Israel backed in general by the United States insists that it should be negotiated with other problems.

Israel wants the Arabs to drop their 19-year-old claim that they are unable to negotiate with her, to allow her to use the Suez Canal and the Gulf Agaba and to recognize her "territorial inviolability and political independence."

Should Work on How to Tell Sex of Babies After They Are Grown

By HALBOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Science has been working for a long time on a simple system for foretelling the sex of a baby before birth.

What it should be working on is the problem of how to tell a glance the sex of a baby after it grows up. This is far more important today in an era when the sexes look so much alike, dress so much alike, and talk so much alike.

For no matter how much a girl may act like one of the boys, she really doesn't altogether enjoy being mistaken for one. And, of course, if you mistake a guy for a gal, you may not only wind up covered with confusion — you may be covered with blood from a punch on the nose.

But a careful person can usually find a way out of any predicament. Here are a few hints that may help you determine the gender of people you meet, when you don't feel it's polite to come right out and ask them:

If it can sing the "The Star-Spangled Banner" all the way through without its voice going falsetto, it's female. If it tries to hum the high notes, it's male.

Does it give a belly laugh when someone in a group at a cocktail party tells a naughty story? That's a young man. Does it look mystified and pretend it doesn't see the point? That's a young lady.

When it picks up an infant, does it immediately cuddle it to its bosom? That's the mama. When it picks up an infant, does it gingerly keep the kid at arms' length to see if it's wet? That's the papa.

Ask it its age. If it tells you, you can be sure it's a man. If it demurs prettily, or changes the subject quickly, it's a woman.

Does it always cry at a sad movie? That's milady. Does it always cry when it is dealt a SEA-LEVEL CANAL is the key proposal in the package agreement with Panama announced by President Johnson. Site was not disclosed. A survey of possible routes being conducted by the Pacific Inter-oceanic Canal Study Association is expected to be completed by 1970. Interest most recently has centered on three possible Panamanian routes. Canals through Colombia and Nicaragua also have been considered.

A SEA OF YOUNG FACES clambers toward President Johnson at the capital recently, each trying for the rare opportunity of shaking hands with the President of the United States. The occasion was the fourth annual Youth Tour to Washington sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

No Settlement in Steel Strike

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — No immediate settlement is expected in the 11-day-old strike at Arkansas Steel Co. Negotiations broke off yesterday over wage demands.

Members of Local 381 of the International Union of Operating Engineers walked off their jobs June 19 after negotiation efforts failed over a new contract.

No new talks have been scheduled, spokesmen for both the company and union said.

Medicare Completes First Year

By JACK MILLER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare celebrates its first birthday Saturday, generally blessed by the elderly, acclaimed by administrators, and tolerated by doctors.

Whether the massive new plan of health care for the aged is viewed as an achievement or a mistake, this much is evident: The system is in full operation, and the elderly are making extensive use of it.

More than 7 million of the nation's 19 million citizens 65 and over have received medicare benefits totaling more than $3 billion.

Not all the elderly are entirely pleased with the way the program has worked so far. Some have been disillusioned, confused and irritated. Some have suffered financial hardship by having to pay doctors' fees and then wait as much as several months for the medicare machinery to process their bill and for the insurance carrier to return their money.

One elderly woman wrote her congressman that "medicare printed books of damn lies and sent them to us. The books said they were going to pay everything or a lot of things, but so far I have got nothing."

But many senior citizens—and their families—have expressed deep gratitude for the program. "I wish I could do some kindness in return to every taxpayer who has made this possible for me and other older citizens," wrote Dora H. Moltoret of Seal-schoolroom near a sprawling Negro slum.

More than 60 young Negroes, many of them hesitant to believe something was finally going to be done, came to learn about "Operation Cool Summer."

This is an ambitious project of the Florida National Association for the Advancement of Colored People aimed at putting idle Negro youngsters to work to siphon off discontent which they predict could explode into violence in Florida communities.

"You don't need to take my word for it," said Rev. Isadore Edwards, Baptist pastor and president of the local NAACP chapter. "Drive down Anderson Street once. They're all there, hundreds of them, talking about Tampa, Cleveland, Watts."

But Marvin Davies, state field director for the NAACP, says if you can put dollars in their hands, they won't be picking up bricks.

Outstanding Parent Named

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri farmer, Roy Brewer of Rosedale, has been selected by the International Organization of Parents without Partners as the outstanding parent of the year.

Brewer, 38, is the father of four daughters: Jerri Diane, 14; Ginger, 11; Claudia Kay, 5; and Belinda Ann, 4. He has been a widower since shortly after the birth of his youngest daughter.

Comprehensive Christian Youth Move

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Beneath a tall pine tree, a red-haired girl stood on a bench beside a table arrayed with knives, hatchets and other cutting tools. She picked up an ax and said:

"Choose a handle with good grain, or you'll blister your hands using it."

Blended with that utilitarian advice, a poster tacked to a nearby tree trunk added an accompanying spiritual note: "Lord, bless the chokes I do, and as I learn in joy and love, may I remember You."

That combined pursuit — of competence and conviction, of reverence and recreation — makes up the twin, interwoven threads of one of the world's most comprehensive Christian youth movements.

Its varied and vigorous features were on large-scale display here last weekend, with an estimated total of 50,000 young Mormons taking part in the annual June youth conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

The gathering offered a sort of showcase — and also planning laboratory — of a massive program that goes on year around throughout the 2.6-million-member church.

And each of its many phases — from outdoor camping to public speaking — include those dual elements, both of diversion and of nurturing abilities and character.

"It's all part of the same thing," said Bonnie Youngberg, a pretty brunette from Bountiful, Utah, adding that religion is integral to happy, capable living. "Fun and faith go together. It's really neat."

That mixed package of skill-enhancing pastimes and devotion were ingredients, not only of the big jamboree here, but of a continuing, every-week operation involving most of the church's youth, more than a half-million of them.

As Time Is Calculated America at 191 Years Considered Middle Aged

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

Next Tuesday is our birthday—the United States of America. We will be 191 years of age, and as time is reckoned for countries, we will be about "middle-aged." Maybe that's why the old and the young (nations) throughout the world look to us for help and support. Isn't that the usual lot of the middle-aged?

We are not apt to forget the shot heard 'round the world, but neither are we going to overlook the possibility of actually landing on the moon. This country is made up of millions of living souls of various backgrounds with a great variety of futures before them. And this is a land where dreams can become realities.

But also we remember... the Alamo, the Maine, Pearl Harbor, Korea, Vietnam. There are millions who died for us and are still dying.

What is this land of ours? To millions of oppressed peoples of the world the USA is a haven, a goal for which they strive. To a lot of misguided rabble-rousers it is a sounding board for a host of pent-up emotions. But, fortunately, to most of its citizens the United States of America is home.

This is the kind of country where the writers of literature are NOT imprisoned for telling the sagas of—the West (Bret Harte), the mid-country (Mark Twain) and the New England area (Nathaniel Hawthorne).

Only in a land such as ours could a man from the North (Stephen Foster) write the stirring strains of a multitude of songs held dear to the hearts of those in the South. Likewise, where else

Antimissile Door Has Not Slammed Tight

By BOB HORTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. military officers do not believe Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin has completely slammed the door on an antimissile limitations pact — but they say the United States has dickered with the Soviets over the issue long enough.

"We can't keep on delaying indefinitely," a ranking general said in an interview. National security requires that the United States begin production of an antimissile defense, he said.

Until now, the officer added, the Joint Chiefs of Staff has felt it acceptable and proper that the United States try to persuade the Soviets against continuing a costly defense weapons race.

"Talks were sensible," he said. "But time has marched on and an affirmative decision to deploy antimissiles should be made in the near future."

The officer allowed the interview on condition that he not be named.

His reaction—plus similar statements from influential congressmen—followed Kosygin's televised comments in New York Sunday which lent no optimism to prospects for a curb on antiballistic missile, or so-called ABM systems.

Kosygin said any U.S.-Soviet discussions should center on the whole area of offensive and defensive armament. "Because, after all," he said, "the antimissile system is not a weapon of aggression, of attack; it is a defensive system."

House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford said Kosygin's remarks dashed cold water on prospects for an ABM moratorium, and declared the administration should "get off dead center and get going on a thin defense."

Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was quoted Thursday as saying those who hold out hopes for an ABM agreement with the Soviets perpetrate a cruel hoax on the American people.

While the general felt Kosygin's remarks should not be construed as a flat rejection of an ABM pact, he noted they were "not encouraging to the conduct of future talks."

are you apt to find a holiday like Christmas commemorated by a Jewish composer (Irving Berlin) in such memorable strains as "White Christmas."

Traveling in this vast countryside can produce wonder and awe for anyone... from the parade grounds of West Point, N.Y., to the beaches of Honolulu, H.I., from the French Quarter of New Orleans, La., to Mount Rushmore, S.D. We have little towns, big cities, private clubs, public parks, illness, research, crime, rehabilitation.

The USA is political speeches in the summer, boy choirs in the winter, harvested crops in the fall, and in the spring? Well, then it's a look and feel that simply is spring.

Mostly, though, our land is --people... Betsy Ross making a flag, George Gershwin writing a rhapsody, Helen Keller imparting inspiration, and Mickey Mantle playing the game well despite obstacles.

To borrow a song title, This Is My Country! Next Tuesday remind yourselves it's Your country, too. If only a flag would be waving at every door—What a glorious sight that would be!

Europe Faces a Critical Oil Storage

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Western Europe faces a growing threat of an oil shortage as production remains curtailed in the troubled Middle East, and tankers cannot use the Suez Canal.

The situation is not yet critical because Western Europe had a three-month supply of oil on hand or in transit when the war between Israel and the Arab nations broke out early this month.

An oil industry source here said although production of oil by Arab countries is less than half of normal, the biggest problem is a tanker shortage.

With the Suez Canal closed by vessels sunk during the brief war, tankers have to make the much longer trip around the southern tip of Africa.

J. Cordell Moore, assistant secretary of the interior, estimated this week that oil shipments from the Middle East to Europe are running less than 30 per cent of normal.

Britain is likely to feel the pinch more sharply than other European countries because the Arab nations have banned shipments to it. Britain normally gets about two-thirds of its crude oil from Arab countries.

Britain, the United States and West Germany were accused by the Arab countries of aiding Israel in the war.

Western Europe in 1966 consumed 8.5 million barrels of oil daily, about 80 per cent of it obtained from the Middle East and North Africa.

Production of oil has been resumed in Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, the biggest producers in the Middle East, since the end of hostilities. But because of unavailability of tankers Kuwait is producing only about 1 million barrels daily, down from a normal 2.4 million, and Saudi Arabia less than 2 million barrels daily, off from a normal 2.7 million.

The Iraq Petroleum Co., resumed exports from its Mediterranean terminal at Beirut, Lebanon, Wednesday. Deliveries were restricted to France and Turkey.

Libya, whose normal production of 1.4 million barrels daily went directly to Europe, continued to be shut down.

The Arab ban on oil shipments to the United States poses no supply problem for this country. Only 400,000 barrels of the normal U.S. daily consumption of 12 million barrels came from the Middle East.

It was estimated that the United States and Venezuela could increase their oil exports by 1.5 million barrels a day to replace Middle East supplies partially.

Texas and Louisiana already have increased their allowable production by 764,551 barrels a day.

Bombers May Have Struck Soviet Ship

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
SAIGON (AP) — Carrier-based U.S. Navy bombers left an oil storage depot in smoke just seven miles west-southwest of Haiphong on the heels of Washington's concession that U.S. planes may have hit a Soviet ship in raids near Haiphong Thursday.

Pilots said they demolished two storage buildings in the North Vietnamese oil depot and triggered a large secondary explosion Friday. Smoke rose 1,500 feet as the fliers turned away from the target, they said.

Navy pilots blasted oil facilities near the big Communist port Thursday, and the Soviet Union charged that, for the second time in a month, American fire had hit a Soviet merchant ship, this time the 2,357-ton Mikhail Frunzo.

The Pentagon conceded the Mikhail Frunzo might have taken an American fire. The United States made the same concession after the Soviets charged that the Soviet freighter Turkistan was hit at Cam Pha June 2.

The only reported ground action in South Vietnam Friday was an all-day skirmish between Communists and U.S. Marines at the Leatherneck outpost of Con Thien, just below the demilitarized zone.

The U.S. Command said the skirmish began at dawn three miles west-southwest of Con Thien and lasted until nightfall.

Congress Has Left Much Unfinished

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is off today on its third formal recess of the year, leaving the Capitol empty except for the usual hordes of tourists — and a massive backlog of unfinished work.

When Congress reassembles after a 10-day July 4th vacation, it will face enough problems to keep it busy for several months — and the likelihood of attempts to sidetrack some controversial issues until the next session beginning in January.

Among unfinished business is legislation dealing with rioting, Social Security, a possible railroad strike, poverty, crime, education, civil rights, foreign aid, appropriations, congressional redistricting, election law reforms and possibly taxes.

Some of them are well along on the road to final action. Others haven't even taken their first legislative step.

Action has been completed on a new military draft law, extension of the Teachers Corps and some other higher education programs, a $12.2-billion emergency appropriation to finance the Vietnam war and Senate ratification of the Soviet consular and outer space treaties.

Two nonlegislative acts, one in each branch, highlighted the first six months of the session.

The Senate censured Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., for converting campaign funds to his personal use. The House refused to seat Adam Clayton Powell, a Harlem Democrat, after a special committee accused him of misusing public funds.

As usual, party leaders in the House, where most of the action has been to date, disagreed on the showing of Congress.

Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said, "We have made a number of excellent accomplishments" and "a lot of important bills will be acted upon in the next few months."

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan took a different view.

He credited "the few constructive things that were done" to heavy GOP House gains in last year's elections.

Congress, Ford added, "has churned about like a rudderless ship."

Democrats outnumber Republicans in the House 247 to 186 despite a GOP gain of 47 seats last November.

Legislatively the House was ahead of the Senate when the latest recess started.

YEARS YOUNG

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America,

When on the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. — We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its powers in such form, as shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, arrives at a degree that requires a change, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient suffering of these Colonies; and such is now the anguish which excites them to alter their former System of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct, and plain, the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world. — He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. — He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation, till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them. — He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of People, unless those People would assent to the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inseparable to them and formidable to tyrants only. — He has called together legislative Bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the People. — He has refused for a long time, after every Declaration, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within. — He has endeavored to prevent the Population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Seas for Migration of Foreigners; refusing to pass other to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Land. — He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers. — He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries. — He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our People, and eat out their substance. — He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our Legislature. — He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power. — He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our Constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: — For Quartering large bodies of armed troops among us: — For protecting them by a mock Trial from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: — For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world: — For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: — For depriving us in many cases of the benefits of Trial by Jury: — For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences — For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein a Government of their own, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: — For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Govern. ments: — For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with powers to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever. — He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us. — He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the Lives of our People. — He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty, & perfidy, scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation. — He has constrained our fellow Citizens to fight in the high seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands. — He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. For many past years Oppression We have Additioned for Relief on the most humble terms. Our repeated Petitions have been answered by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free People. Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British Brethren, we have warned them from time to time of attempts by their Legislature to extend an unwarrantable Jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have urged them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow those usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of conjuncture. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends.

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connections between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the Protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Television and Radio

By GENE HANDSAKER
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—What single thing can television do to improve itself most?

A visiting delegation of television editors and critics from U.S. newspapers offered some answers.

Wade Mosby, Milwaukee Journal: "Find better stories. So many things are like what you saw yesterday."

Jennie Lea Bird, Baltimore News-American: "Bring back some of the dramas from earlier days. Studio One. Playhouse 90."

Millie Budd, Houston Post: "Get out of the merry-go-round, the follow-the-leader rut. Strike out on new paths."

Jerry Coffey, Fort Worth Star-Telegram: "Get away from audience ratings as the judge of programming. Judge programs on a basis of quality."

Bob Tweedell, Denver Post: "Sure, the guy who's selling soap or toothpaste needs to reach a mass audience. But the man who sells Cadillacs, or even Chevies, doesn't have to reach all the kids."

Coffey: "Is it better to have an audience of 30 million with no buying power — or an audience of 10 million who can really do a sponsor some good?"

Turner Jordan, Birmingham News: "If there are three shows, with audiences of 30, 20 and 16 million, they kill the lowest-rated one. But what do you do about those 16 million viewers?"

Bevo Baker, Dallas News: "TV should forget the numbers completely. Find sponsors who are willing to go ahead whether they have 30 million or 16 million viewers. Bell Telephone and Xerox do."

Coffey: "A lot of sponsors who'd like to have better programs can't get air time. The networks don't want shows that will drag down the ratings."

Harry Harris, Philadelphia Inquirer: "TV should do the things that creative people in the medium will take pride in. There are people of taste and ability who are not doing things they themselves would look at."

Bill Irvin, Chicago's American: "Give some shows more of a chance when they're on the borderline in ratings. People are unhappy when a show is taken off, especially when it's replaced with one that's worse."

Francis Murphy, Portland Oregonian: "One thing the networks are doing is putting on more specials. And there's a trend away from horrible situation comedies."

Eleanor Roberts, Boston Traveler, said TV should "not presume we are morons, not aim completely at the juvenile set, should take a gamble once in a while and do a quality program." She agreed there are quality specials, but "I'm speaking of series."

Ann Hodges, Houston Chronicle: "Probably Fred Friendly is right when he says the best thing would be for the FCC to lift a couple of licenses. That might make some difference in a hurry."

BABY SITTERS FIGHT BACK
Dear Helen: So "Mr. Shar-in" thinks baby sitting is like "gravy" after 9 p.m. Last time I went sitting, this woman said it was just her two children and they were "good as gold". I gave up a date because she couldn't find anyone else. That right there should have warned me!

When I got there, she informed me their friends also couldn't find a sitter, so would I mind watching their three too? What could I say?

Well, one child screamed when her mother left, and kept on howling off and on till midnight. She also punched, kicked and spit at me. In addition she threw water on the floor, woke up her baby brother, crumbled a cupcake into the rug, refused to go to bed, and broke my watch. The others weren't quite as bad — they just raided the fridge, had a pillow fight, wouldn't mind and fought over TV programs.

I suffered for five and one-half hours and the first family paid me $2.50 for that night of terror. The second family didn't even so much as thank me. From now on, I charge by number of kids!—BATTLE SCARRED SITTER

Dear Helen: A baby sitter usually gets less than the tip the waitress gets for serving the couple's dinner and drinks. And he works a heckuva lot harder! —MALE TYPE SITTER

Dear Helen: We are two teen sitters who feel the price charged depends on the number of children, and the duties the sitter has to perform. Here are our Ten Commandments for the sitter and her employer:

1. Thou shalt not use thine babysitting time as a study hall, but let thy first thought be of the children.
2. Thou shalt be cheerful and happy.
3. Thou shalt not snoop in matters or dresser drawers not thine own.
4. Thou shalt not entertain a male friend or converse on the phone, unless permission has been granted.
5. Thou shalt carry out all instructions.
6. Thou shalt not use recreational areas (hi-fi, stereo, TV, etc.) unless permission from employer is obtained.
7. Thou shalt lock all outside doors.
8. Thou shalt not let anyone enter unless the employer has said she expects someone.
9. Thou shalt treat the children with consideration.

10. Thou shalt not raid the refrigerator or have a party while the employer is away.

FOR THE EMPLOYER

1. Thou shalt not use thy baby-sitter as a maid.
2. Thou shalt leave a telephone number and let the sitter know if and where she may sleep.
3. Thou shalt tell the children that the sitter is the boss while the parents are away.
4. Thou shalt get a sitter the children like.
5. Thou shalt call a sitter ahead of time so she can plan her schedule.
6. Thou shalt tell the sitter if the plans are changed.
7. Thou shalt come home when you have told the sitter you will.
8. Thou shalt call the sitter if you will be home later than expected.
9. Thou shalt tell the sitter if she may use the recreational areas and the telephone.
10. Thou shalt understand when your sitter is sick or has other plans. Thou shalt always alert the sitter if the children have colds, for she may not want to be exposed.

Thank you for listening.—TWO TEENS

Dear Teens: And thank you for an article I'm sure many sitters and employers will clip and save! —H.

This Guy Can't Win for Losing

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Ramirez, 19, drove to the courthouse Thursday to fight a traffic ticket.

As the case was about to be called he realized his parking meter was running out. He asked the judge for time.

Granted, Joe raced out and started across the street when a policeman grabbed him for jaywalking. He gave Joe a ticket and a long, long lecture.

So long was the lecture that a meter maid got to his car before Joe did. She gave him a ticket and ignored his plea.

When he got back to court the judge had gone to lunch. Joe fed the meter diligently until his honor returned.

"With my luck I knew the verdict before the judge pronounced it—"Guilty, $5 or one day in jail," Joe said.

Joe went to pay the fine and found only $2 in his wallet. The clerk let him go on his promise to pay.

When Joe got home to Jericho, Long Island, he found a letter.

"Greetings," it said, report for induction in the U.S. Army July 20.

Vivacious Gals Surround Vic

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — When little Vic Damone has to write his composition, entitled "What I Did This Summer," he's liable to have a best-seller on his hands. Vic is spending the summer in the company of two extremely vivacious females.

On the one hand, there is Carol Lawrence, a flashing-eyed charmer who owns and operates a particularly nice set of legs. On the other hand, there is Gail Martin, fresh and freckled, who has happily inherited her father's wit (he's Dean Martin) to go along with a saucy beauty.

The three are doing a program on NBC which bears the ridiculous title, The Dean Martin Summer Show With Your Host Vic Damone, hereinafter referred to as "DMSS-WYHVD." Even that acronym is a bit much.

For Carol Lawrence, alias Mrs. Robert Goulet, "DMSS-WYHVD" is a chance to let the world know she's still around. She was out of circulation for a couple of years, having babies. Now she can show everybody she's still fit as a fiddle, and she can sing and dance and cavort as well as ever.

Carol is enthusiastic about the choreographic abilities of Ronnie Field, doing the dances on the show. Field did the dances for "Cabaret" on Broadway this season.

"He's imaginative," she says, "and with a summer budget, too. Too many dance shows on television cop out and do the usual thing, the easy thing. Dancing on television is hard work—you have to be imaginative and you have to be dedicated."

After all "DMSS-WYHVD" shows are taped, Carol sets out for a summer tour with "Funny Girl." She'll take her two small sons with her and her husband will be one jump ahead of them, touring with another show. They'll see each other Sunday nights.

"It's hard to plan my career," Carol says. "I have to see what Bobby is doing first, before I can sign anything. If he goes to Broadway, I can go and do a show there, too. I can't take a series because he might be in New York."

Gail Martin, being single, has no such problems. All she wants out of life is a small hunk of everything show business has to offer—a Broadway musical, night clubs, television, movies, the works.

Being Dean's daughter, she may get it. She has a way about her that defies description but automatically makes friends. So's her old man.

Dean is a good father, Gail says. There are seven in the family—Gail ranks third—and she says they weren't spoiled.

"When he said no," she says, "he meant no. When I went to Beverly Hills High all the kids had cars. I'd come home and say, 'Dad, all the other kids have cars.' And

Supermarket Games are Nightmares

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The men who dream up the games people play at supermarkets and gas stations for $100 million a year in cash and prizes say they are here to stay. But many of the sponsoring merchants see them as a necessary nightmare.

"Almost every oil company wishes it didn't have to get involved in these games," says a Mobil Oil Corp. spokesman, whose company sponsors "Safety Pays." "But once the competition gets one started, then you've got to get in to keep your share of the market."

The men who invent the games disagree. Jerry Poncher, board chairman of J&H International Corp. of Chicago, one of the companies that think up the games, says: "These contests are not only here to stay, they will accelerate rapidly in popularity in 1967 and the years ahead."

One of the latest games on the sales promotion scene is called "Double Sweepstakes Bingo." It's aimed at catching the American housewife at both her supermarket and gas station.

Service station and supermarket chains previously had, and many still do, run their promotions separately. But now National Food Stores and American Oil Co. have teamed up to run the identical contest simultaneously.

Those who patronize the more than 1,200 outlets of the two chains in the Chicago area will get bingo cards and numbers to paste on them. Numbers picked up at the supermarket are good on the bingo cards passed out at the service station and vice versa. Winners can get either merchandise or cash prizes ranging from $1 to $1,000.

Although slightly more sophisticated, "Double Sweepstakes he'd say, "Good, then you won't have any trouble getting a ride."

She says breakfast in the Martin Sr. house is wild. Daddy gets up on the right side of the corn flakes and everybody tries to out-wisecrack everybody else. You get nine wise guys going at once, at breakfast time, and any respectable egg benedict would get divorced.

A typical breakfast exchange: Gail, entering the breakfast room: "Good morning, daddy."

Dean, looking up from his eggs: "What do you mean by that?"

Starting the day with that kind of conversation is enough to curdle the orange juice, but the Martins apparently thrive on it.

Gail, with daddy's encouragement, did a year of singing in joints—"and I mean joints"—to get experience. She figures now she can handle any kind of audience.

Even the breakfast crowd at Dino's.

Four Letter Words Have Become Chic

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — Have you heard more four-letter words lately?

A New York psychiatrist and psychoanalyst, Dr. Renatus Hartogs, says that obscene words are becoming chic.

Surprisingly—except to a psychiatrist—it's the decorous middle class matron who is making the most of her opportunities to drop four-letter bon mots into sophisticated conversation.

Fifty years ago she would have managed to have her skirt creep demurely above her ankle. Today she may smile sweetly and turn the air blue with barracks language.

It's all part of playing the four-letter word game, as Dr. Hartogs terms it, which provides "a socially acceptable projection surface for repressed motives and instinctual needs."

In his recently published book "Four-Letter Word Games," the psychiatrist attributes the increasing popularity of "dirty talk" to the Chatterley syndrome: The acceptance of formerly taboo words in middle class speech. He says it dates from 1959, when a U.S. District Court liberated "Lady Chatterley's Lover" from the bonds of censorship.

"The lower classes always have used these words," said Dr. Hartogs in an interview, "but now in certain middle class circles it's very 'progressive' — put that in quotes — or drop a little word that has shock value."

"Now there is a definite loosening on traditional moral values which primarily affects women, who have been forced to hide behind what I call 'the shame barrier.' It has not been the role of women to be rebellious, but as they become more aggressive intellectually and sexually, they are more inclined to use words that reflect anti-value."

He says that cocktail parties — "where flirtation and quasi-sexual pursuit are part of a stylized ritual"—are the principal playground for these new conversational gambits.

The dirty word expresses something of a person's secret wishes and images. "At the same time it tests society's reaction, or at least the reaction of the person to whom it is addressed. By this kind of word game, the person can—at least on the symbolic level—strike a balance between his own needs and the norms and rules of society," he says.

The four-letter word game allows a woman to remain physically within accepted bounds while committing symbolic transgressions, he says. "Her stylish use of profanity openly violates nothing more than fading conventions of polite discourse; yet by implication it overthrows a broad spectrum of restraints."

Geologists have estimated that Niagara Falls is between 25,000 and 30,000 years old, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Beauty Briefs

Use Tape, Not Clips

Women with lightened hair often end up with unsightly clip marks after setting their hair. Lightened hair tends to be more porous and, therefore, bends easily. If too many clips are ruining your set you can always solve it by using tape to keep hairs in place.

Pamper Your Eyes

Pamper your eyes with gentle, careful cleansing and thorough make-up removal. Don't rub, scrub or tug at the delicate skin around the eye and lid. To regain a bright, clear-eyed look, try a trick used by photographic models and make decongestant eye drops part of your regular beauty routine. Apply eye drops in each eye before you add accents, such as liner, shadow and mascara. It works visibly, while you watch, to restore sparkle and adds to clarity and expressiveness.

TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY AT SAENGER

COMEDY AT ITS WILDEST - LEWIS AT HIS CRAZIEST!

IT'S WILD AND WACKY JERRY—TWICE! Jerry Lewis, the greatest laughmaster of them all, is being featured in a special double-bill presentation of two of his best features, "Cinderella" and "The Errand Boy."

"Cinderella" is a wild, hippy modernization of the timeless tale with Jerry playing Fella—the male counterpart to Cinderella. In "The Errand Boy," Jerry plays a well-meaning paper-hanger who is hired to spy at a Hollywood studio because, "He is so stupid he won't understand he is hired to spy." Naturally, everything is wild and crazy, and typically Lewis laughable.

BE PARTNERS WITH GOD SUPPORT HIS CHURCH

they won

...without army, or navy, or air force. Thirteen small struggling colonies set themselves against imperial might, and they won. Led by men of character, devotion, courage and high ideals, the men of Valley Forge won our Independence, our Fourth of July. They were lovers of Liberty and of God. But our freedom did not come easy. God bless the memory of those historic patriots who laid everything on the altar for their country... their lands, their homes, their families, their very lives. Are we worthy to 'follow in their train?' Just what are we paying for this rich inheritance? Let us bow, on this Fourth of July, in devout gratitude. Let us help make "Christian America" truly Christian, more loyal and more Godly.

You In The Church
The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker and attend services regularly.

Ministers of all faiths and the community-minded firms below persuade you to read this Spiritual Values page and make it a part of your life... it is your heritage.

British Seek Open Wimbledon

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — British tennis officials, battling hard for the right to stage an open Wimbledon, were a game down today with their service to follow.

They admitted they have not yet picked up enough support for their motion for a two-year experimental period of open tennis, to be presented at the annual meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation next month.

But they still have two weeks to try to persuade other countries to see their point of view. The arguments over open tennis went on as another fantastic crowd packed the All-England club Thursday. In four days 105,000 have watched the tournament.

Yet the British are the ones who want to change the structure of Wimbledon and let in the pros. Meanwhile, the All-England club finalized its plans to stage an all-professional tournament on the famed center court at Wimbledon in August.

Herman David, chairman of the club, said: "It looks as if we are going to lose the vote for open tennis again. But we mean to see that our pro tournament here is a real smash-hit success."

The All-England club is promoting the tournament in association with the British Broadcasting Corp. Prize money will total $35,000. So far the confirmed entries include Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., Andres Gimeno of Spain, Pancho Gonzales of Los Angeles and three Australians—Rod Laver, Fred Stolle and Ken Rosewall. Two places are still vacant.

Opponents of open tennis have made it clear they will not change their attitude when the ILTF meets at Luxembourg July 12. Britain's proposal needs a two-thirds vote to go through. That means the opponent needs to mass 70 votes to block it. The British are holding behind-the-scenes talks with the other major tennis powers—the United States, Australia and France—in a bid to iron out differences between them on the open tournaments question. The four nations command the biggest voting blocs in the ILTF.

Meanwhile, Wimbledon itself is flourishing. Another crowd of 30,300 packed the ivy-clad arena of the center court and the paths around the outer courts Thursday, as the men's singles contenders came down to the last 16.

Only two Americans survive—Charlie Pasarell, husky 23-year-old star from San Francisco, P.K., and Clark Graebner, the big Davis Cupper from Beachwood, Ohio. Pasarell downed Frank Tutvin of Canada—a student at Miami University—6-1, 6-3, 6-1. Graebner defeated Edison Mandarino of Brazil 6-3, 6-3, 11-9. Roy Emerson, twice champion already, is among five Australians still in contention. With them are two Germans, two Britons, and one each from Brazil, South Africa, Russia, Romania and Yugoslavia.

Could Be Youngest to Win Meet

By ED YOUNG
HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Call her Mademoiselle. She is, perhaps, De Gaulle's revenge. Or maybe she cannot keep her cool. But don't make book on it. Her name is Catherine LaCoste, she turned 22 only last Tuesday, and in the National Women's Open Golf Tournament today they were conceding her a chance to become the youngest player ever to win the title—and the first amateur.

As the 72-hole tournament went into its second round this morning at the Cascades Course, a consistent money-winner among the pros — Sandra Hayne of Fort Worth, Tex., led the pack after an opening-round 70, one under par, Thursday.

But right behind, tied at 71 with two pros—Susie Maxwell and Sybil Griffin — came the dark-eyed, vivacious Miss LaCoste of Paris—daughter of one-time tennis star Rene LaCoste and his wife, Simone, herself an accomplished golfer.

Forty years ago, Miss LaCoste's father won the Wimbledon championship and her mother the British Women's Amateur golf crown. Daughter Catherine very much would like to celebrate the anniversary in a distinctive way.

How better than to win the U.S. Women's Open? "I'd like it very much," said Miss LaCoste. "And I like this course. It's much like one my parents own in the south of France"—The Club de Chantaco, southwest of Biarritz.

Miss LaCoste's Thursday round, featuring great chipping and putting on what they're calling a chip-and-putt course, made no laughing matter her threat to dispossess the pros of the title they have held since the first Women's Open was held in 1946. She practiced here for nine days before the $25,000 open started. It shows.

Miss Hayne, third-ranking money winner on the ladies PGA tour, took aim on the $5,000 first prize with the only sub-par round of 74 shot Thursday, when rain intermittently splashed the lush Cascades layout.

No one else in the field of 56 pros and 38 amateurs could match par. Betsy Cullen of Tulsa, Okla., shot 72 and four tied at 73—pros Betsy Rawls, a former champion, Margie Masters and Shirley Englehorn and amateur Barbara Gabrielsen.

Alice was married June 10th at 4 p.m. to Mr. Charles F. Reeves in the home of her uncle, who lives at 5209 Roswell street, San Diego, Calif.

The newlyweds left immediately for their honeymoon in San Francisco. Mrs. Witherspoon stopped over in Yuma, Arizona and Fort Worth, Texas on her return trip home.

Automakers in Detroit and their ad agencies probably delivered the final blow to the old waving game. They saw the value of promoting this kind of exclusivity. In their publications and campaigns they began urging, "Wave to another Buick Riviera." or, "Take a low-priced three driver to lunch today."

Cocktail Circuit In Nation's Capital: Otto Graham Happening

By DAVE BURGIN

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Until Mike Epstein or somebody hits the home run that wins the Washington Senators a World Series, this town is strictly politics and professional football.

On the cocktail circuit, in the night spots, in literally thousands of government offices, any chitchat bounces between what "The Birds" (which is what Washington calls the Lyndon Johnson family) did today and what's new with the Washington Redskins. "Epstein," suggested Rep. Buzz Lukens (R-Ohio), "would have to hit a hundred homers, or the Whips (Washington's soccer entry) would have to win the World Cup."

A Redskins game is a combination fashion show and cocktail party... and an Otto Graham happening. "Oh, he's beautiful," said young housewife Stevie Pollock. "Otto is so honest."

Next season will be Graham's second as a pro coach. His first produced a 7-7 season, but no matter. The Redskins played exciting football on Sundays and during the week Otto kept the fans informed, passing on—privately and publicly—cocktail party gems from Sonny Jurgenson's shoe size to how he thought the Redskins could beat the Dallas Cowboys.

"I suppose I'm somewhat unique among pro coaches," Graham said. "I play to win and it's not that I know any more football than the other guy. Rather, I believe the game is always a game—played for the fun of it—and always for the fans."

Graham gets more invitations to ladies' clubs and business luncheons than any senator. He'll stand up, answer questions, kid with folks or speak off the cuff on practically any subject. Recently, some fellows at the Executives Club asked about Joe Don Looney.

Pulling a clipping from his pocket, Graham said, "Well, I read where Mary Catherine Looney wants her marriage annulled. She claims Joe Don 'misrepresented the facts.' Now you can interpret that

OTTO GRAHAM

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—It was only a couple of years ago, it seems, that the waving game was all the rage for supercool sports car types.

Today, because of a nation suddenly rediscovering cars, the waving game is dead in its old form. The new form is snobbery still.

Back then it was "waving up" and "waving down." You know, you in your MGA could "wave up" to a big Jaguar, then hold your breath waiting for the guy in the Jag to acknowledge your meager presence. Meanwhile, if you had a mind to, you could make life miserable for some sweet young thing whipping down the pike in her Sprite.

But status is a funny thing, in that just about everybody wants some of it. So next thing sports car owners knew, they were getting indiscriminate waves from pick-up trucks and Cadillacs, hotrods and old Crosleys.

Automakers in Detroit and their ad agencies probably delivered the final blow to the old waving game. They saw the value of promoting this kind of exclusivity. In their publications and campaigns they began urging, "Wave to another Buick Riviera." or, "Take a low-priced three driver to lunch today."

any way you want."

Earlier, there was trade talk involving National Football League stars Mike Ditka, Ken Willard and Jim Taylor. Graham ended all speculation: "George Halas wants an arm and a leg for Ditka... Willard just isn't available. Sorry... Taylor wants too much money. He'd ruin team morale."

Graham on No. 1 Redskins draft choice, fullback Ray McDonald: "Don't worry about Ray's leg injury. Tim Temerario, our chief of personnel, has the same injury but it only bothers him when he runs backwards."

One fan was concerned about Charlie Gogolak's short kickoffs and said to Otto: "Pat Richter can punt and lots of teams have players who do both jobs. Why can't Richter kick off?"

"Why can't you?" Graham shot back. "I can't punt," the guy said. Appearing on Sonny Jurgenson's television show, Graham was asked whether he'd make a trade if he could find a better quarterback.

"Sure," Otto said. "Wouldn't it be great having you as a backup quarterback?"

Similar tidbits make the parties hum. But inevitably politics and football do conflict. To drop a name like Bobby, in June or November, one has to designate Mitchell the flanker or Kennedy the senator. It's better to refer to a Redskins by his first name.

"Lyndon? Lyndon?" the joke goes. "Oh yes. He's an interior lineman." (Note: There is an offensive tackle named Errol Linden on the Atlanta Falcons.)

Canadians Sign Two Players
OTTAWA, Ont. (AP)—The Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League have announced the signing of guard Steve Kush of West Virginia and halfback Charlie Jones of Kent State.

They must. There's no other way to explain the 12th Annual Porsche Parade here, a week-long frolic of: Grand Concours d'Elegance, a rally, a sports car drivers' school, an autocross and a technical quiz.

Parade chairman Bob Lee, 31, an electronics engineer and native of Canton, China, put it all together. But he didn't stop with a "Porsche technical quiz" for the 400 parade attendees.

In the most elaborate Porsche parade yet, Lee lined up a boat trip and Hawaiian luau (featuring Crab Rangoon, steak Teriyaki and roasted banana), a clambake, a Bavarian night (Porsches are made in old Stuttgart), two receptions at the West German embassy, two private cocktail parties and a fashion show. Lee also arranged for a kiddie-care service for Porsche owners with children.

Of course, other car clubs have annual gatherings, too. It all has evolved to the point where the different clubs are known for different things.

For example, the MG group is supposed to be swinging. Volkswagen people are folksy, down-to-earth. Mercedes owners are, some say, a bit stuffy. Then there's the Porsche group with its great pride and attention to detail.

"The kiddie-care service this year," said Lee, "is the first in the history of the Porsche parade."

SPINOFFS: The word from Watkins Glen, N.Y., site of the American Grand Prix this fall, is "definitely a record crowd." In-town hotel arrangements are booked solid. But there's always room for another tent on the old camp grounds (in the infield area). Could it be that the MGM movie, "Grand Prix," has ballooned interest?

BOSTON—(NEA)—The best break Dick Williams ever got ruined him as a major league ballplayer and made him as a major league manager. He's the young skipper who has brought the Boston Red Sox into respectable contention again in the American League this year.

But on an August day in 1952, playing the outfield for the Brooklyn Dodgers, Dick still imagined himself a combination Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. Then he dove for a fly ball in St. Louis and came up with his right collarbone where his neck was supposed to be. Result: a shoulder separation in three places and a throwing arm that had the range of a Flying Jenny.

So from one of the hotshots on the Dodgers (they'd already traded Andy Pafko and told him he'd be their leftfielder), Williams went to a scrambling utility man.

"I used to hang around the bullpen warming up the pitchers," mused Williams. "One day against St. Louis, manager Chuck Dressen motioned me to come into the dugout. I sprinted all the way, eager, aching to get into the game."

"Hey!" Chuck yelled at me. "Sit down here. Westlake's coming up for the Cards. I want you to ride him—get him hot."

"I was Chuck Dressen's bench jockey. He used me when he wanted to get on some player."

Dick eventually hung around the majors for 13 years as a fill-in player in the outfield, at first base and at third base with a wing that never got stronger than a limp handshake but an insatiable curiosity to learn the trade.

"The injury," continued Dick, "was the best thing that ever happened to me. I started studying the game more thoroughly, learning the different positions. When the Dodgers finally gave up on me in 1956 and traded me to Baltimore, my education progressed. Paul Richards, the manager there, started moving me around from position to position and I got an idea what each one demanded."

Richards kept trading him off and bringing him back—four times in all. On hustle and speed and moderate power, Dick stuck around the American League through 1964. He led Kansas City in hitting one year, walked 16 home runs and drove in 75 another season. His last two years, he wound up as a pinch hitter for Boston.

"After '64 Mike Higgins (Red Sox general manager) told me that with the new 40-man roster, they were going to have to get rid of the old guys," said Dick. "He offered me a job as a coach with Seattle, with the provision that if the club was moved, I'd get a chance to be the manager."

"I told him I had to call one guy—Richards. Paul told me to grab it because the Seattle farm was sure to be shifted to Toronto."

Before he ever reached Seattle, the franchise was moved and Williams jumped straight from player ranks to boss of the Toronto team in the International League. What qualified him?

"Well," he smiled, "I'd been sitting around three years before that. I got plenty of chance to second-guess the manager."

When the Red Sox fired Billy Herman late last season, Williams was the natural to be elevated to the varsity. He wasn't in the least surprised.

"I was in the right spot," he shrugged, "at the right time. I'd done a good job with the top farm club."

And he isn't surprised the Red Sox have done well this spring. "They had the good players for several years," he said, frankly. "It was simply a matter of getting them to play together—togetherness, if you want to be corny."

But isn't baseball essentially an individual game?

"For statistics, yes," he answered, "but not for winning. A man doesn't hit behind a runner and advance him to scoring position, and you lose a run. That run costs you a game. That's the penalty of no team play."

Williams has no illusions about his future as a manager, though. He is building a new home for his family. He is not building it in Boston. He is building it in Florida, where he'll never have to answer to the neighbors when the Red Sox lose.
